Notice to Visitors

Please help us keep you, other visitors, and Museum staff healthy and safe.

The Staten Island Museum is following the recommendations from the NYC Department of Health guidelines regarding COVID-19 (novel Coronavirus).

Greetings: We ask that visitors give and accept a wave or a nod as a greeting at this time (no handshakes).

Cleaning: We have increased cleaning frequency exceeding the recommended guidelines to disinfect, especially areas of high use such as doorknobs, handrails, elevator buttons, restrooms, and the like. Please notify Museum staff of any place that you believe is in need of attention.

Handwashing and other personal precautions:

You can minimize personal risk –

- Wash your hands frequently for at least 20 seconds with soap and water after using the restroom, sneezing, or coughing. If a restroom is in need of supplies, please notify the staff.
- Avoid touching your eyes, nose and mouth
- If you need to cough or sneeze, please do so into the sleeve of your shirt or into tissues that are disposed of immediately and wash your hands.

The Museum is monitoring the situation closely and receiving updates from city officials on a daily basis to ensure we are operating in line with best practice protocols.

For the latest available information about COVID-19, please check:
https://www1.nyc.gov/site/doh/health/health-topics/coronavirus.page

Thank you for your cooperation and understanding.